GIRL MURDERED BY CHEROKEE INDIAN

Bloodstained Finger Prints on Hat Lead to His Arrest.

MOB THREATENS LYNCHING

Makes Partial Confession, Telling How Victim Fought for Her Life.

Asheville, N. C., October 8.—Ross French, twenty-one, a Cherokee Indian, living on the Birdtown, Swain county, reservation, was safely locked in the county jail here to-night, charged with the murder of Ethel Schuler, the fourteen-year-old daughter of a Birdtown farmer, after having attempted to criminally assault her. His arrival here was effected after an exciting escape from a mob of 100 men, bent on lynching the prisoner.

The body of the dead girl was found Friday in the woods near the town with her throat cut, and no trace of her assailant was found until this morning, when Deputy Sheriff Beck, of Swain county, arrested French at a police seven miles from Sylva. Beck made the arrest on the strength of blood-stained finger prints on the Indian's hat.

The news of French's capture spread quickly to the neighboring towns, and a mob of 100 men followed the deputy sheriff to Waynesville, where French was lodged in jail. As the mob continued to grow the sheriff called out the militia and the crowd was dispersed. Beck then took his prisoner through the back door of the jail to a waiting automobile. At Clyde, twenty miles from this city, the deputy sheriff boarded an Asheville-bound train, arriving here at 6:30 to-night. At 5 o'clock to-night the Indian made a partial confession, but would not give full details of the crime.

Telephone messages from Waynesville to-night stated that threats of lynching were being freely made there. When captured this morning, French claimed that the blood stains on his hat were those of an owl which he had shot in the woods. To-night he stated that the girl made a desperate fight, and that she had hit him in the head with a rock. He said he did not intend to harm her, but had asked her to accompany him into the woods. He denies any effort at criminal assault.

CRAMP NEARLY CAUSES DEATH

Lady In Board Camp, Attacked by Cramp, Says She Felt As If She Were Dead.

Board Camp, Ark.—"When I was just fifteen years old," says Mrs. Virgie Bain, of this place, "I suffered awfully with a cramp in my stomach, about once a month, and I had a dead feeling all the time—no life to do anything."

I took two bottles of Cardui and I felt like a different person. I had tried all kinds of medicine for over a year, but not a thing helped me until I took Cardui.

A short time ago I suffered again. I would ache and hurt till I couldn't stand on my feet a minute to do my work. My back ached and my head hurt all the time.

I was glad I knew about Cardui! I took three bottles, and now I never have any ache or pain, and I am cheerful and happy."

If you have wondered where you could find a remedy to ease your pain and relieve the torment which goes with so many forms of womanly trouble—here is your answer!

Take Cardui, the woman's tonic, and be relieved, as Mrs. Bain was.

Cardui is just the medicine every woman needs to help her over her womanly troubles.

Try Cardui.

ROBINSON WILL FLY DOWN RIVER

Interest of Aviation World Now Centres in Proposed Trip.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Washington, October 8.—Plans for the coming great "Down the Mississippi River flight" to be made by Hugh Robinson in a Curtiss hydroplane, are rapidly nearing completion, and the interest of the entire aviation world is at present centred in this epoch-making undertaking. So widespread has this interest become that it has overshadowed all other cross-country and long distance flights that have recently held the centre of the aviation limelight.

Robinson has personally, after a thorough investigation, selected, as a starting point of this great flight, Lake Calhoun at Minneapolis. The time for his departure will be set for October 11, and there will be no delay in his getting away, with the one exception of unavoidable bad weather conditions.

The present plans call for the flight to follow the Mississippi River from Minneapolis to St. Louis. Owing to its very great importance as a test and experiment in aerial navigation, the distance to be covered may be extended to New Orleans.

To this pressure is being brought to bear from many citizens' organizations in the river cities south of St. Louis, who see in the achievements of the hydroplane, a new and vital feature to aid in the development of their great waterways, are also behind the movement of the Mississippi, Ohio and Missouri Rivers as great natural waterways, are also behind the movement to have the flight extended.

Robinson's hydroplane has been perfected to the highest point of efficiency for the flight. Extra parts and additional motors and other accessories have been sent to various points along the river route, that no time may be lost in case of mishaps. In order to complete his air and water journey in the shortest possible time, Robinson will not make any detours inland from his course for the purpose of giving exhibitions for remuneration, as the entire plan of this stupendous undertaking is free of all advertising features.

The object of the flight is to demonstrate the value of the hydroplane as an aerial craft over other types because of the ease and safety with which long journeys may be made by following water routes; the advantage being that the aviator can make easy and safe landings on the water, which are not possible for the aviator making long cross-country flights, and who, in case of an emergency or accident, has much difficulty in finding a cleared or proper spot to land.

Another interesting feature of the flight is that Robinson will be appointed special mail carrier by Postmaster-General Hitchcock. During the Mississippi River flight experiments will be made to show that the hydroplane can carry mail matter in a short period of time, between certain points of the river, than by the railroad schedules making.

Robinson, on September 25, gave a spectacular exhibition, with his Curtiss hydroplane, at Evansville, Ind., and over 40,000 people lined the banks of the Ohio River to witness his machine sport in the air and on the water.

Lieutenant J. G. Elyson and Lieutenant J. H. Towers, the United States naval officers detailed to the aviation corps, who recently finished their course of training at the Curtiss school at Hammondsport, have been assigned to Annapolis, in charge of the navy's aeroplane station. These officers will instruct such naval officers as are assigned for aviation duty by the Navy Department at this station, and they will also conduct a series of experiments that are contemplated by the Navy Department in connection with the future use of the aeroplane in warfare.

Lieutenant Elyson and Captain Paul W. Beck, of the United States Army, were both successful participants in the recent Nassau Boulevard meet on Long Island, successfully competing against the older exhibition aviators, and won many of the events. Captain Beck had the honor of carrying the Postmaster-General and a bag of mail on one of the days and made history, as this was the first time the head of the postal service ever actively performed the duties of postman.

BARGE IS RAMMED BY BATTLESHIP

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Cape Charles, Va., October 8.—While en route from Norfolk to Cape Charles late last night, the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad transfer barge, No. 4, in tow of the tug Norfolk, was struck on the stern by a United States battleship which was steaming for Hampton Roads. Two men were damaged by projecting guns of the fighter, having the impact to run about one-third their length over the end of the barge. Immediately after the collision the battleship turned searchlights upon the barge and then steamed off. The accident occurred in the rain and fog, and it is believed the battleship crew failed to note the lights on the tug, showing that she had a tow. An investigation by the railroad people probably will bring to light the name of the vessel which at the time of the accident was between Thimble Light and Old Point Comfort.

FEW APPLES SOLD ON WINCHESTER MARKET

Buyers Declare They Cannot Afford Prices Asked by Growers—Hagerstown Fair Great Time for Eloping Couples.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Winchester, Va., October 8.—During the week closing last night, less than 42,000 barrels of fall and winter apples had changed hands in the Winchester market, which is not regarded as a very good showing in view of the fact that Frederick county growers are now harvesting in the near neighborhood of 340,000 barrels of the fruit. For a long time there was a deadlock between the buyers and growers, which was broken recently when a new independent dealer came down from New York and boosted prices for a day or two. Several of the new people have not established acceptable credit, and many of the growers fought shy of them. The result was that few apples were sold at high prices. The regular dealers declare they lost money last year and the year before, and that it is necessary for them to get back at least some of the money they lost, and which they claim, went into the pockets of growers. The Northern, Southern and Eastern buyers admit the Frederick county apple is admirably suited for market purposes, but that they cannot afford to pay the prices asked by many of the local growers, some of whom want as much as $1 a barrel for Newtown pippins this year, and $3 and over for red apples. The buyers have been offering a little over $3 a barrel for pippins and other fancy grades, and about $2.35 and $2.50 for the fruit, and during the past week about 40,000 barrels changed hands at this figure.

The fourth annual convention of the Frederick County Sunday School Association was held in Braddock Street Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Winchester, during the latter part of the week, and nearly every Sunday school in the county was represented. L. A. Adams, of Stephens City, was re-elected president, as were all other officers. Several of the principal addresses were made by General State Secretary T. C. Diggs, of Richmond.

The Hagerstown Interstate Fair will be in progress this week, and already many parents of marriageable daughters living in the mountain sections west of Winchester are watching their girls, lest they elope with some young man who may have been paying attention to the fair ones of the hills. For many years it has been customary for large numbers of young couples to elope to Hagerstown during fair week, and in some instances the run-aways have traveled all night over rough and rugged mountain roads to take the early train out from Winchester.

Preparations are being made by the people of Wickliffe, Clarke county, and vicinity, to entertain the ministers of the Protestant Episcopal Church who will attend the fall session of the Valley convention, which convenes there on Tuesday for a session lasting several days. Rev. W. D. Smith, of Winchester, is dean of the convention, and ministers are expected from the counties of Frederick, Clarke, Warren, Shenandoah, Rockingham, and Page.

John C. Koons, the Winchester post-office inspector, who was until recently superintendent of the ninth division of railway mails, with headquarters at Cleveland, O., has been promoted to the position of superintendent of the division of salaries and allowances in Washington at a salary of $4,000 a year. Mr. Koons is the man who captured "Eddie" Pay, the Richmond post-office robber, in New York several years ago.

The corner-stone of the new Southern Methodist Church at Arden, Berkeley county, W. Va., will be laid with imposing ceremonies on November 4, and the same will be in charge of Past Grand Master Peyton C. Harrison, of Martinsburg, who has been designated by the grand master of Masons in West Virginia to dedicate as grand master on that occasion. Rev. F. A. Brotherton, of Brucetown, is pastor of the church.

Ten thousand blackbirds, which for a long time had camped at night in the tops of trees in the National Cemetery in Winchester, have suddenly broken camp and departed. Superintendent E. J. Lewis, who is a retired Baptist preacher, declares he is positive there were at least 10,000 of the birds, and they made such a racket about sundown that life was miserable in the neighborhood. Dozens of Winchester hunters went out to the cemetery by invitation with their guns to exterminate the birds, but gave up the job, as few days ago the birds left, presumably to find their flocks in fields east of town, and they have failed to come back. All the people of National Avenue are hoping the birds will stay away.

H. F. Byrd, of Winchester, president of the Valley Turnpike Company, has entered a contract with a Waynesboro (Pa.) concern to buy two 12-ton steel rollers, which will be used on the pike between Winchester and Staunton this fall and winter, and probably until next spring. It being the intention to roll the road continuously during the winter season. One roller has been in service for several weeks, and it is doing excellent work. Mr. Byrd said to-day the company intended to make the Valley Pike the model highway of the South. It has already spent large sums of money on new bridges and steel culverts, and the road has been widened in many places.

The fall meeting of the Winchester Presbyterian, embracing all the lower Virginia counties west of the Blue Ridge and a number of West Virginia counties, was held last week in Petersburg, W. Va., and Rev. Samuel Knox Phillips, formerly of Richmond, but now of Berryville, was elected moderator. The next session will be held in the spring in the Cedar Church, near Vaucluse, Frederick county.

Lewis F. Maloney (alias James A. Lanham), who was formerly a traveling salesman for a Baltimore shoe company, has been indicted by the grand jury of the Frederick County Circuit Court on the charge of forging the name of Scott Grant, a wealthy Frederick county farmer and stockman, to a check for $185 and depositing the same to the credit of James A. Lanham in the Middletown State Bank at Middletown, this county. Maloney has his trial set for next month, and his trial will be taken up in the Circuit Court on Tuesday morning.

Many of the people of slender means living in the mountain sections, whose crops failed wholly or in part during the long drought of the past summer, have hopes of getting some revenue this fall from the sale of chestnuts, which are unusually plentiful this year. The nuts are said to be of an exceptionally fine quality, too, and they command good prices when shipped direct to the city markets. Old inhabitants say they never saw so many chestnuts before in one season.
